

Approved eVS Mailers

The parcel mailers listed in the table at the end of this article are currently the only ones authorized to manifest parcel mail using the Electronic Verification System (eVS) to pay for parcel mailings that are prepared under Mailing Standards of the United States Postal Service, Domestic Mail Manual (DMM®) 705.2.9 and that meet the technical specifications in Publication 205, Electronic Verification System Business and Technical Guide.

The following is a new customer using eVS for postage payment:

- Office Depot Inc began mailing Priority Mail parcels using eVS on July 21, 2008 at multiple entry facilities.

The following customers are testing eVS and not using eVS for postage payment:

- CVS/Caremark: Parcels contain the “eVS” endorsement in the permit imprint indicia printed on its mailing labels.
- FedEx SmartPost: Parcels contain the “eVS” endorsement in the permit imprint indicia printed on its mailing labels.
- Harlequin: Parcels contain the “eVS” endorsement in the permit imprint indicia printed on its mailing labels.
- International Distribution Services (IDS): Parcels contain the “eVS test” endorsement in the permit imprint indicia printed on its mailing labels.

PS Form 8125

eVS mailers are not required to use PS Form 8125, Plant-Verified Drop Shipment (PVDS) Verification and Clearance, with these exceptions:

- DHL Express is required to use PS Form 8125 to document parcels presented at destination entry facilities. DHL Express prepares and pays for some destination entry parcels under eVS (such parcels are endorsed with “eVS” in the permit imprint indicia) and prepares and pays for other destination entry parcels under traditional plant-verified drop shipment (PVDS) manifesting procedures.
- CVS Caremark, FedEx SmartPost, Harlequin and International Distribution Services (IDS), which are testing eVS, are required to prepare and present PS Form 8125, along with all other paperwork required for PVDS manifesting procedures.
- Newgistics uses PS Form 8125 as an option to obtain a “start-the-clock” scan.
