

Dear AMS API Customer:

This letter is to inform you that we have recently made a change to the way we build the Linux 32-bit version of the AME library. This change was made in an effort to improve the compatibility of the AME library across multiple kernel versions of 32-bit Linux.

This new version is now available for testing and we encourage everyone to take advantage of the testing period to verify that the library continues to work in your environment without issue.

This new version is currently scheduled to be moved to production and released on the July 2012 DVD.

Please respond to this email to request a copy of this new version for testing.
